“Clean Marine: helping you to comply with stringent emission requirements without increasing the fuel bill”

Mr. Eirik Dahlberg
Clean Marine AS

Date : Monday, 26 May 2014
Time : 4.30pm to 5.30pm, Tea/coffee from 4pm
Place : United Conference Centre, 10/F United Centre
95 Queensway, Admiralty, Hong Kong

The IMO Annex VI sulfur regulation calls for a 0.1% sulfur limit in Emission Control Areas (ECA) by 2015 and a worldwide limit of 0.5% by 2020 or latest by 2025. Approved ECAs include Baltic, North Sea, English Channel and US and Canada coasts and inland waters. Compliance may be sought through shifts to distillate fuels or gas fuels (LNG or LPG). The most viable option however, is to continue operating the large bore, slow speed maritime machinery on Heavy Fuel Oil (HFO) for which they are designed while removing the sulfur from the exhaust gas. This is possible through the installation of a scrubber or as defined by IMO, an Exhaust Gas Cleaning System (EGCS).

Clean Marine is one of the pioneers within the maritime EGCS industry since 2006. Our thorough knowledge of the maritime industry and good engineering practice has been incorporated into the design of our marine scrubber. Clean Marine offers ship owners, engine makers, and ship builders the information and equipment needed to install an EGCS on both new buildings and existing vessels.

Eirik Dahlberg is a China (Asia) expert with a background in international business. He has substantial strategic and operational international management, sales, and business development experience gained from across geographical regions, different cultures, diverse industries, and this carries a proven track record. Mr. Dahlberg has lived and worked abroad for 20+ years; with a predominant focus on Asia. Mr. Dahlberg holds a Bachelor degree from The Graphics Art Institute of Denmark.
